Dear Government

I do not think Hong Kong should impose GST as this will have an impact on the Hong Kong community lo low income. On the other hand GST would be appropriate in a sense. For example, implement GST on selected "non-essential goods". What I mean is, start charging the franchized fast food outlet for take-away santries (Tomato ketchup, sugar, salt and pepper) and utensiles (chopsticks, cutteries, beakers etc).

Or implement highway taxes and flyover taxes. Nowadays, there are many covered flyovers with sound barrier being built, I think the government could start charging the drivers on weekdays and charge less on weekends. This might have a milieu impact as well. Perhaps the community will start taking more public transportation. Hence a greener Hong Kong.

Methinks, the above mentioned could help the Government to save revenues for rainy days.

Yours Sincerely
Thomas
